

By Alison Matheson

<http://www.christianpost.com/news/egyptian-court-criticized-for-acquitting-suspects-in-coptic-killing-case-49125/>

The U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom criticized on Tuesday the decision of an Egyptian state security court to acquit two men charged with the murder of six Coptic Christians.

Related

Last month, a state security court sentenced Mohamed Ahmed Hussein to death for his part in the January 2010 shooting outside a church in the town of Naga Hammadi during which six Coptic Christians and the church's Muslim security guard were killed.